Kyrtin,

Thanks again for meeting with Bryan and me yesterday. We're always excited to chat with ARC-AGI community members, especially ones that have as much energy as you.

Thank you for your ARC-AGI-Pub submission. Our team reviewed your submission and discussed it internally. We have decided to not move forward with verification at this time.

Unfortunately, it does not meet the criteria of 2 specific rules, as listed on our website:

2. Any APIs called must be publicly and commercially available for others to use.
9. Submissions must be open source to qualify for verification and reimbursement.

The purpose of the public leaderboard is to measure approaches utilizing production-grade state-of-the-art LLMs like those available from OpenAI, Anthropic, and Google that would be restricted in the official ARC Prize competition. The public leaderboard is not intended to measure and verify proprietary AI systems.

We still encourage you to test on the public data and share your results with the community.

Though we aren't able to verify the submission today, this decision is not permanent. Should your project meet all criteria in the future, we look forward to revisiting it.

Please keep us updated with how AGI Laboratory and Norn progress. We hope you stay active in Discord and make great connections with others in the community.

Best,

Greg
